

A Night At The Museum

The Brief

PLOS, The Public Library Of Science, asked The Cambridge Dining Company to manage and deliver a unique, memorable Christmas Party for 45 guests.

The Venue

The Museum of Archaeology and Anthropology was proposed as an unusual, intriguing backdrop for the event. The MMA isn't a dusty old museum, its ever-growing collections document contemporary life all over the world making it a fitting venue for a vibrant, progressive organisation such as PLOS to hold an event.

The Food & Drink

Keen to avoid the formality of a sitdown meal, PLOS opted for CDC's canapé & bowl food menu. Bowl food is a great way to serve a substantial meal whilst allowing guests the freedom to explore the venue. Served in quirky recyclable bowls with wooden cutlery, dishes included lamb cutlet with Dijonmash, cavolo nero & port sauce, salmon & smoked mackerel fish pie and rotolo of ricotta & butternutsquash with sage butter. Of course it would not have been a Christmas Party without one of the bowls being a mini Christmas dinner complete with all the trimmings! With the mulled wine in full flow and the Gypsy Jazz band doing what they do best, the museum came alive for the evening.

Testimonial

"Thank you too for the great organisation on the night. Everyone had a great time and I've heard from quite a few people who have worked at PLOS for a while that they reckon it was the best Christmas party yet."
Sinead Calnan, PLOS.
